

Blue Air Report

First of all, the blue air filter is not even close to being in the same class as AirSource. Their filtering system is somewhat like the system I have installed in my furnace. Because of this, it would not be fair to them to compare their system with our AirSource system. It would be like comparing a bicycle to a car; They are both means of transportation but are entirely two different things.

Here is just some of the differences:

They use HEPA filters which have different effectiveness results and only when it comes to particulates. As far as molds, viruses and fungi, they are only partially effective and only if these happen to come into their system. Then you still have the problem with gases and odors which HEPA filters are not effective. They offer an optional smoke filter but here again it increases the cost and is only partially effective.

They claim their machine does not produce ozone and in fact, they claim it reduces ozone already in the air. I find this most entertaining because it is a known fact that ozone is the most effective on Bacteria, Viruses, Fungi, Mold, Gases and Odors which their system is only partially effective. If their system really does reduce the current ozone in the air, they may be doing more harm than good!

Their unit requires filter replacement every 6 months. $158 per year or $452 per year if you also want the smoke filters! AirSource is $39 per year to maintain and is so much more effective!

Their unit will only do 550s.f. which would mean it would take 5 1/2 of their units to treat what 1 AirSource unit will do. (3000s.f.)! The amount of their units required to do 3000 s.f. would cost a person $3,107.50 unless they buy 1 of their units for $565 and move it from room to room everyday. I guess that is why they make it with wheels.

I could go on and on but I think the best thing for you to do is go to the AirSource web site and learn what type of system we have invented here. There is nothing like it on the market and there will never be because we own the exclusive marketing rights to this new technology!

Lastly, if you are talking to a business person who is selling these, I would suggest you show him our sales plan. We have people, including myself, earning $15,000 to over $30,000 in their first month selling AirSource. I think he will be impressed with the opportunity we are offering. There is also no comparison when one looks at network marketing vs. a conventional business. But that's an altogether different story!

You can see a presentation on this at my web site. Just look at the first one listed, it is called AirSource Quick View Business at my web site. <http://www.youfoundyourfuture.com>

Hope this helps,
